FAMILY AND ANCESTORS OF SEVILLE CHAPMAN (1)

~~of 2343 Kensington Avenue, Buffalo 26, New York~~

August 1, 1962

Seville Chapman
94 Harper Road
Buffalo, N. Y. 14226

In 1951 for professional reasons it was necessary for me firmly to establish my American citizenship, since my birth record filed with the American consul in Seville, Spain said only that "a son" was born to my father (!). As corroborating evidence I obtained a certain amount of genealogical data which have been supplemented more recently. Such data are difficult to acquire and easy to lose, so I have organized the material and have had several copies made. This work is neither exhaustive nor particularly scholarly, but it does represent the information I have.

I believe that more important than who a man's ancestors were is what he himself contributes to humanity. His ancestral background may be interesting and in some cases, for example, the one mentioned above, important.

Chapman

The Chapman family name comes from the Saxon, "ceapan," or "cypan," signifying "to buy or sell." The Saxon "ceap" is a bargain, a price, a trader, a shopman.

John, a weaver, was made a freeman in Charlestown, Mass., in 1634. He was in New Haven, in 1639, later went to Fairfield and thence to Stamford, Conn.

Robert came from Hull, England, to Boston, in 1635, and moved to Saybrook, Conn., that same year.

Ralph, a ship carpenter, came from Southwark, Surrey, England, in 1636, to Duxbury. He afterwards moved to Marshfield.

Edward came from Yorkshire, England, to Boston in 1639. He went to Ipswich in 1642 and in later years was in Rowley.

Among the prominent members of the family in the United States today are: Judge Arthur Chapman of Portland, a justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of the State of Maine; the Rev. Edward M. Chapman, of Old Saybrook, Conn., a Congregational minister, who has held pastorates in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Michigan and Vermont; Oscar L. Chapman assistant secretary of the interior and a native of Vermont, who makes his home in Washington; Virgil M. Chapman, a Congressman from Kentucky, and Roy H. Chapman, a justice of the Supreme Court of Florida.
